law, and amused himself with writing poetry, particularly the "Ode on a distant Prospect of Eton-college," which was published separately, in 1747, in fol. In 1749 he finished his "Elegy in a Country Church-yard," which, however, was only circulated among his friends, till it was added to the Strawberry-hill impression of his poems, illustrated with the designs of Bentley. In 1756 he became a member of Pembroke-hall; and in 1768 he was appointed professor of modern history at Cambridge, by the duke of Grafton, for whose installation as chancellor of the university he wrote the ode performed on that occasion. He died July 30, 1771; and was buried in the church-yard of Stoke Pogeis in Buckinghamshire. After his death, Mr. Mason published his life and works; and latterly a more elegant edition has been given by Mr. Mathias, in 2 vols. 4to. — Johnson's Poets. Gen. Biog. Dict.

GRAZZINI (Anthony Francis), an Italian poet, was born at Florence in 1503. He was one of the founders of the academy at Florence, which originally had the name of Humidery, both Grazzini, pursuant to one of its resolutions, adopted the name of Lasca, or the roach. When this society came under the protection of the grand dukes, Grazzini was appointed the chancellor and superintendant; which creating jealousies, he withdrew, and set up the academy Della Crosca, the object of which was to polish the Italian language. He died 1583. His tales or novels were printed at Paris, in 1756, 8vo.; and his poems at Venice, in 2 vols. 8vo. — Tiraboschi.

GREATRAKES (Valentine), an empiric, was born at Affane in the county of Waterford, in Ireland, in 1628. He received his education in Devonshire; after which he returned to Ireland, was made a justice of the peace, and clerk for the county of Cork. At the Restoration he pretended to the power of healing desperate diseases, by stroking the affected parts with his hands. Some cures were performed, and even the great Boyle himself was deceived by them. He died about 1682. — Harris's Hist. of Ireland.

GREAVES (John), a mathematician, was born at Colmore, in Hampshire, in 1602. After taking his bachelor's degree at Baliol-college, Oxford, he obtained a fellowship in Merton-college. In 1630 he was elected professor of geometry at Gresham-college. He next went to Leyden, where he studied the Arabic language under Golius; after which he travelled into the Levant, to purchase manuscripts for archbishop Laud. He also visited Egypt, and made a survey of the pyramids; and in 1640 returned to England, when he was deprived of his Gresham professorship; but the king gave him that of astronomy, at Oxford, which he also lost on the ruin of the royal cause. He died in 1652. His miscellaneous works were collected, and published in 2 vols. 8vo. 1737. The principal is his "Pyramidographia," or a Description of the Pyramids in Egypt, printed first in 1646, 8vo. His brother, Dr. Thomas Greaves, fellow of Corpus Christi-college, and deputy-reader of Arabic, was prebendary of Peterborough, and rector of Benefield in Norfolk. He died in 1676. His works are — 1. De Linguæ Arabicæ, &c. 2. Observationes quædam in Persicam Pentateuchi Versionem. 3. Annotationes quædam in Persicam Evangeliorum. Dr. Edward Greaves, the younger brother of this learned family, was a physician, and created a baronet by Charles II. He died in 1680. He wrote "Morbus Endemicus," 4to. &c. — Biog. Brit.

GRECINUS (Julius), a Roman senator in the time of Caligula, whose commands he refused to obey, as the accuser of Marcus Silanus, for which the tyrant put him to death, A. D. 40. He wrote some agricultural works. He was the father of Cn. Julius Agricola. — Moreri.

GRECOURT (Jean Baptiste Joseph Willart de), was born at Tours in 1683. He studied divinity at Paris; after which he was appointed minister of St. Martin, at his native place; which situation he resigned, and went back to the capital, where he became a companion to the marshal d'Estrées. He died in 1743. His works, consisting of epigrams, songs, fables, tales, and a Latin poem, entitled "Philotenus," were printed in 1763, in 3 vols. 8vo. — Dict. Hist.

In 1744 he was appointed chaplain to the duke of Somerset, who gave him the living of Borough-green, near Newmarket. In 1748 he was elected regius professor of divinity; and two years after master of Bene't-college. In 1756 he became dean of Lincoln, and afterwards bishop of that see. In 1771 he obtained the deanery of St. Paul's. He died in 1779. He was one of the writers of the Athenian Letters; besides which he published some sermons, and a tract on Enthusiasm. — Gent. Mag.

GREEN (Matthew), a poet, of whom nothing more is known than that he was brought up among the dissenters, was a native of London, and had a situation in the custom-house. He died in 1737. His poem, entitled "The Spleen," is a very ingenious performance. It was printed, with other pieces of this author, in Dodsley's collection, and subsequently in an elegant form, with a preface, by Dr. Aikin, in 1796. — Gen. Biog. Dict.

GREEN (William), an English divine, who was fellow of Clare-hall, Cambridge, and rector of Hardingham, in Norfolk. He died in 1794. His works are — 1. The song of Deborah, reduced to metre; with a Translation and Commentary, 4to. 2. A Translation of the prayer of Habakkuk, the prayer of Moses, and the 139th psalm with a Commentary, 4to. 3. A new translation of the Psalms, with notes, 8vo. 4. A new Translation of Isaiah, from the seventh to the fifty-third chapter, with notes, 4to. 5. Poetical parts of the Old Testament, translated from the Hebrew, with notes, 4to. — Europ. Mag.

GREENE (Maurice), a musician, was the son of the Rev. Thomas Greene, vicar of St. Olave, Old Jewry. He was brought up in the choir of St. Paul's, of which cathedral he became organist, and also of St. Andrew, Holborn. In 1726 he was appointed to the same situation in the Chapel Royal; and in 1730 obtained the degree of doctor in music, at Cambridge, where he was chosen professor in that faculty. He died in 1755. — Burney. Hawkins.

GREENE (Robert), a poet, was born at Norwich about 1560. He had his education at St. John's-college, Cambridge, where he took one degree, and then travelled into foreign countries. On his return he entered into orders; but disgraced his profession by the irregularity of his life. He died in 1592. His works are numerous; and one of them, entitled "Greene's Groat's-worth of Wit bought with a Million of Repentance," has been lately reprinted in 4to., with a biographical preface.

GREENE (Thomas), an English prelate, was born at Norwich in 1658. He became fellow of Bene't-college, Cambridge, and chaplain to archbishop Tenison, who gave him the living of Minster, in the Isle of Thanet, and conferred on him his doctor's degree. In 1698 he was elected master of Bene't-college. In 1721 he was made bishop of Norwich; and in 1723 was translated to Ely. He died in 1738. Bishop Greene published "Four Discourses on the four last Things," 12mo.; and some tracts and sermons. — Masters's Hist. of C. C. College.

GREENHILL (John), a painter, was born at Salisbury, and became a disciple of Lely, to whom he was afterwards a powerful rival. He led a very irregular life, and died in 1676. — Walpole's Anecdotes.

GREENVILLE (sir Richard), was born at Stow in the parish of Kilkhampton, in Cornwall, in 1540. He entered early into the military life; and after serving as a volunteer against the Turks went to Ireland. He next joined sir Walter Raleigh in his expedition to America; and in 1591 became vice-admiral under sir Thomas Howard, who was sent out to the Azores to intercept the Plate fleet. The Spaniards, however, being apprised of the design, dispatched a powerful squadron, which succeeded in cutting off Grenville's ship from the rest; and he died of his wounds, after an obstinate contest. — Biog. Brit.

GREENVILLE (sir Bevil), grandson of the preceding, was born in 1596. He received his education at Exeter-college, Oxford; after which he became a member of parliament. At the commencement of the civil war, he raised a troop of horse at his own expense; and was killed at the battle of Lansdowne, July 5, 1643. Lord Clarendon gives him a most exalted character. — Ibid.

GREENVILLE (Dennis), son of the last-mentioned, and brother to the first earl of Bath, was born in Cornwall, and educated at Exeter-college, Oxford, where he was created master of arts in 1660. He married a daughter of bishop Cosin, of Durham, who gave him a prebend in that church, with the rectories of Easington and Sedgefield. In 1684 he was installed dean of Durham; but lost that and his other preferments at the Revolution, for not taking the oaths. He then went to France, and died there in 1708. He published some tracts and sermons. — Ibid.

GREGORY, surnamed the "Great," was born of a noble family, at Rome, about the year 544. After serving the office of præfect, he embraced the monastic life, in a society founded by himself. Pope Pelagius II. sent him as nuncio to Constantinople; and on his return made him apostolical secretary. He was elected successor to that pontiff in 590; and among other instances of his zeal, we may mention that to his being the means of converting the English to Christianity. He died in 60[illegible]. His works were printed at Paris, in 1705, 4 vols. fol. — Gen. Dupin.

GREGORY (Nazianzen), was born in 324, at Nazianzum, in Cappadocia, of which place his father was bishop, who gave him an excellent education, which he improved at Athens, where he formed an acquaintance with St. Basil, for whom he officiated some time as reader of rhetoric. On his return home he was ordained; soon after which he wrote poems to counteract the designs of Julian, who had prohibited the Christians from teaching youth. In 378 he went to Constantinople, where he was chosen bishop, which appointment was confirmed by Theodosius in 380. After filling this see some years, he resigned it, and returned to his native place, where he died in 389. His works have been printed, in Greek and Latin, in 2 vols. folio. — Ibid.

GREGORY (Nyssen), the brother of St. Basil, and bishop of Nyssa. He was a zealous defender of the orthodox faith against the Arians; for which he was deposed and banished by Valens. He still continued, however, to oppose that faction, and had a share in drawing up the Nicene creed. He died in 396. His works were printed in 1615, in 2 vols. fol. — Ibid.

Du Hamel died at Paris, where he was dean of the academy, in 1782. — Dict. Hist.

Hamilton (Anthony, count), was of an ancient Scotch family, but born, in 1646, in Ireland; from whence he was taken to France, when a child, by his parents, who were attached to Charles the Second. At the Restoration he returned to England, but was again obliged to remove when James the Second abdicated the throne in 1688. The count died at St. Germain's in 1720. His works have been published in 6 vols. 12mo., and 3 vols. 8vo. The principal are his "Fairy Tales;" and above all the rest "The Memoirs of Grammont;" which exhibit an admirable portraiture of the court of Charles II. — Ibid.

Hamilton (Elizabeth), was born at Belfast, July 25. 1758. On losing her parents in her infancy, she was taken by an uncle and aunt near Stirling, at whose death she came into the possession of a small estate. In 1792 she met with a great misfortune in the death of her brother, Charles Hamilton, who had risen to eminence in the service of the East India Company, and was employed by the court of directors in editing the Hedaya. Miss Hamilton remained single through life, which ended in a most exemplary manner, at Harrogate, July 23. 1816. Her works are — 1. The Letters of a Hindoo Rajah, 2 vols. 8vo. 2. Memoirs of Modern Philosophers, 3 vols. 3. Letters on the elementary Principles of Education, 2 vols. 8vo. 4. Life of Agrippina, wife of Germanicus, 3 vols. 5. Letters on the Formation of the Religious and Moral Principle, 2 vols. 6. The Cottagers of Glenbervie, 8vo. 7. Rules of the Annuity Fund for the benefit of Governesses, 4to. 8. Exercises on religious Knowledge, 12mo. 9. Popular Essays, 2 vols. 8vo. 10. Hints addressed to the Patrons of Public Schools. After her death appeared her Memoirs, with a Selection from her Correspondence, and other writings, edited by Miss Benger.

Hamilton (Gavin), an historical painter, was born at Lanark, in Scotland. Having discovered an early genius for painting, he was sent to Italy and placed under Augustine Massuchi, by whose instructions he profited considerably; after which he applied diligently to the study of the antique, and thus acquired a fine classical style of composition. He died at Rome, where he chiefly resided, in 1797. At the close of life Hamilton employed himself chiefly in the discovery of antiquities. He was the author of a work entitled "Schola Italica Picturæ." — Pilkington, by Fuseli.

Hamilton (George), earl of Orkney, was the fifth son of the earl of Selkirk. He entered early into the army, and distinguished himself at the battle of the Boyne, as well as in several other actions and sieges, for which William III. made him a peer, in 1696. In 1704 he was at the battle of Blenheim, where his division captured thirteen hundred French officers, and twelve thousand soldiers. After various services in Marlborough's campaigns, particularly at the battle of Malplaquet, he was sworn of the privy council, and made field-marshal. He died in 1737. — Scotch Peerage.

Hamilton (Hugh), a learned prelate, was born in Ireland in 1729. He received his education in Trinity-college, Dublin, where, in 1751, he obtained a fellowship. In 1758 appeared his treatise "De Sectionibus Conicis;" and the next year he was elected Erasmus Smith's professor of natural philosophy. In 1764 he accepted a college living, and thereby vacated his fellowship. After this he obtained the rectory of St. Anne's, Dublin; but relinquished it on being promoted to the deanery of Armagh. In 1796 he was consecrated bishop of Clonfert; from whence, in 1799, he was translated to Ossory, where he died Dec. 1. 1805. His works and life were published in 1809, in 2 vols. 8vo.

Hamilton (James, duke of), was the eldest son of James, marquis of Hamilton, by lady Anne Cunningham, daughter of James, earl of Glencairn, and born in Scotland in 1606. He studied at Exeter-college, Oxford, and at the age of eighteen succeeded to his father's title. He now rose in high favour at court, but gained little credit by an expedition into Germany, to assist Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, in 1630. When the troubles broke out in Scotland, the marquis had the command of the fleet, and in 1643 was created a duke; but soon afterwards his loyalty became suspected, and he was sent prisoner to Pendennis-castle, and next to that of St. Michael's-mount, in Cornwall. There he remained till 1646, when he regained his liberty and went to Scotland, where he was accused of having betrayed the king, and received a share of the money. To wipe off this disgrace he raised some forces, and entered England; but was defeated at Preston, in Lancashire, August 17. 1648, and sent to Windsor-castle. After a summary trial before Bradshaw, he was sentenced to be beheaded, which was put in execution March 9. 1648–9. His brother, William, who succeeded him in the title, was mortally wounded at the battle of Worcester, Sept. 3. 1651. — Life by Burnet.

Hamilton (Patrick), the first Scotch reformer, was nephew to James, earl of Arran, and born in 1503. He was educated at St. Andrew's; after which he went abroad, where he imbibed the opinions of Luther. On his return home he was made abbot of Ferne, in the shire of Ross, where he promulgated the new doctrines with so much zeal as to excite the wrath of the clergy, who caused him to be apprehended and sent to Beaton, archbishop of St. Andrew's. After a long examination he was declared contumacious, and burnt at a stake opposite St. Salvador's-college, March 1. 1527. A trea-
